DECLARATION OF SEAN BELCHER

I, Sean Belcher, declare:

1. I have personal knowledge of the facts set forth herein and, if called as a witness, could competently testify to them in a court of law. The facts set forth herein are confirmed by notes that I made shortly after the events in question.

2. From July 17, 2006 until August 21, 2006, I was employed as a technical writer at Jeppesen Data Plan ("Jeppesen"), in San Jose, California.

3. On Friday, August 11, 2006, after I had been at Jeppesen for about four weeks, I attended a "Breakfast Club" meeting for new employees held at the Jeppesen San Jose office. At the meeting we were given a welcome and an informational talk by Bob Overby, the director of Jeppesen International Trip Planning Service.

4. In his talk, Mr. Overby provided some company history and descriptions of the company's services, acquisitions, revenue, benefits, and the like. About half-way into his talk, as he was describing the company's operations, Mr. Overby said: "We do all the extraordinary rendition flights." He made this statement with no preamble and with no indication that he thought the information was confidential or that we should not disclose it. Then, after making his initial statement about the rendition flights, apparently thinking that only one or two of those present knew what he was referring to, Mr. Overby added that these were "the torture flights." In making that comment, in which he specifically used the words "torture flights," Mr. Overby also said, "let's face it, some of these flights end up this way," or words very close to these. He indicated that there were some employees who were not comfortable with that aspect of Jeppesen's business, but went on to say that "that's just the way it is, we're doing them," or words to that effect. Overby then added that providing services for the rendition flights paid very well. He said that the government spared no expense and did not worry about costs; what the government had to get done, it got done.

5. After Mr. Overby made these statements, Mr. Overby indicated that two employees handled those flights, one of whom was mentioned by name.

8. Shortly after the breakfast meeting, on Wednesday, August 16, 2006, I gave Jeppesen notice that I wished to resign. My last day on the job was Monday, August 21, 2006.
